CONCLUSION

We concluded that paid advertising is performing well and is successfully driving orders, leading to a noticeable increase in sales. However, sustainable growth cannot rely on paid ads alone.

Organic content and consistent posting remain the foundation of long-term success. In particular, focusing on interactive, comedic content can significantly enhance engagement. This type of content helps humanize the brand, encourages audience participation, and creates a stronger emotional connection with customers.

For paid ads to be truly effective, they should be supported by a strong organic presence. Starting with a compelling hook (such as a strong price offer or an attractive deal) helps capture attention, but maintaining interest requires entertaining and relatable content that people want to interact with and share.

In short, paid ads drive immediate results, while engaging, humorous organic content builds brand personality, loyalty, and long-term growth.
